Senate Document SD 81-11
(Approved February 8, 1982)

PRIVILEGES ACCORDED EMERITUS PROFESSORS

The faculty and administration of Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne endeavor to facilitate the scholarly activity and participation of those emeritus faculty who wish to remain active in the life of the University. To this end, the privileges and perquisites listed below are provided by Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne to its emeritus faculty in recognition of their years of service to the University; the rights and privileges accorded by Indiana University or Purdue University are also applicable.

I. LISTING.

- A. Bulletins. Emeriti will be included with the faculty in IPFW bulletins and other publications of the University which contain lists of faculty members. Their names will also be listed in Indiana University or Purdue University bulletins and other publications as provided for by those universities
- B. Campus Directory. Emeriti having offices on campus will be listed in the campus directory.
- C. Mailing Lists. Names of emeriti having on-campus mailboxes may be kept on regular mailing lists upon request.

II. PARTICIPATION

- A. Faculty Senate. Emeriti shall have the same rights as faculty who are non-senators, except that they shall not have voting privileges.
- B. Other Units. A school, division, department or other faculty unit may, at its discretion, invite emeriti to participate in its activities under conditions deemed appropriate by the unit.
- C. Supervision of Students. An emeritus professor may be invited to participate in the direction, supervision, and evaluation of student research and its resultant papers, theses, and dissertations.

III. UNIVERSITY RESOURCES. Recognizing the needs of the faculty, the University shall assess the needs of emeriti for office space, supplies, equipment, secretarial help, and other University support, and will attempt through its planning and budgets to meet such needs.

- A. Office Space. An emeritus professor may request of the appropriate department chairperson office space in keeping with his or her professional activities. The chairperson may incorporate needs of emeritus faculty into the space requests of the department.
- B. Departmental Resources. An emeritus professor shall have access to supplies and equipment, secretarial assistance, and other departmental resources to support professional activities at the discretion of the chairperson.

C. Facilities. The Dean of the Faculty shall evaluate requests of emeriti for access to computer, laboratory, and library facilities and establish guidelines and priorities for such use if approved.

D. Grants. Emeriti may avail themselves of the services provided by the Office of Sponsored Research.

E. Miscellaneous. The University will provide upon request complimentary "A" parking permits to emeriti residing in the area served by IPFW, and will provide mailboxes and other items and services determined to be appropriate for the activities of individual emeritus professors.
